Multi-Phase University Pathway Programme

EURASIA Institute is an educational provider and facilitates international students to study in Germany. Our University Pathway Programme gives you the best possible preparation for university studies in Germany. The Multi-Phase University Pathway Programme is a comprehensive preparation programme for university studies which begins in your home country, takes you through German classes in Berlin and ends on the campus of your chosen university in Germany, where you will take final exam preparation stage as a registered student of the university.

The EURASIA Institute teachers follow a communication-oriented teaching model. Dialogues, role-playing and communication with and in front of others are part of modern foreign language teaching. The goal is to enable you to communicate in German as much as possible and thus prepare you in the best possible way for your university studies.

Multi – Phase University Programme Description:

1st Phase: student completes the first level of German language (A1) in the home country with EURASIA thus optimizing the use of time during the application process. 1st Phase will take approximately 6 weeks teaching. The course in total consists of 180 h tuition. The first language level conveys the basics of the German language and will prepare you for your stay in Germany. Our study counsellors give the students proactive support during the application process and indeed through the whole programme.

2nd Phase: After arrival in Germany, you will continue the language course and finish the language levels required for the entrance language exam (C1). This phase also includes integration seminars and courses to prepare students for their academic life in the university.

After passing the language exam at the end of the 2nd phase, you will move to your chosen university for the final phase of the course. Here you will be given formal student status and registered at the university for the language exam preparation course before finally beginning your Bachelor's/Master's Degree.
